
IATEFL Statement following the UK Referendum on EU membership

For the past 50 years, IATEFL has been linking, developing and supporting English Language Teaching professionals across the world. We are proud to be an international organisation with members in 125 countries and partnerships with Teacher Associations in over 100 different countries.

IATEFL has its headquarters and holds its annual conference in the UK. Whilst it is too early to understand the full impact of the UK Referendum results, it will not change our commitment to our mission. Our Annual Conference will, for the present time, continue to be held in the UK, and we will offer assistance to those applying for visas as we have always done. We will also carry on holding online events and other conferences and training events in locations outside the UK run by our Special Interest Groups (SIGs).

IATEFL will continue to be a collaborative association which offers its members the chance to be part of a global teaching community. We will continue to work with our members, our stakeholders and our partners to serve the professional needs of ELT professionals throughout the world.

With best wishes

The Team at IATEFL
